

Writing for different audiences

Grade 4 Writing Worksheet

Practice by writing about the topic below for two different audiences.

When you write something, it's important to ask yourself: Who will read this? This is your audience! Your writing's tone, the information you include, and the words or phrases you use should be based on your audience.

Topic: Your school is getting a brand-new playground! Your principal would like to write a paragraph announcing the playground and explaining what it will be like. (Use your imagination as you describe it!)

Audience #1: Parents at your school

Audience #2: Students at your school
